The planning process should blend an understanding of public health need with awareness of scientific opportunities that will increase both the efficiency and value of NIMHs research investment. KEY PERSPECTIVES AND PRIORITY SETTING There are many contributors to and patients consumers of research on mental illness. Although the diversity of opinions within these groups cannot be fully captured in a brief paragraph or two, identification of these groups and their general issues are mandatory for understanding the breadth and complexity of this arena. Individuals with Mental Illnesses and Their Families 2 Individuals with mental illnesses and their families have asserted themselves as active participants in developing treatment and rehabilitation plans with their care providers. Grassroots groups such as the National Alliance for the Mentally Ill,...
